SMALL PRODUCTION OF PRECIOUS STONES

Gems and precious stones were produced in the United States in 1912 to the value of $319,722, according to Douglas B. Sterrett of the United States geological survey. The kinds of precious stones found in the United States are many, ranging from diamonds of fine quality to low-grade stones such as agates, but as is seen from the total value of the output there are no really large operations. The principal gem mineral mined in the United States during 1912 was Montana sapphire, of which there was a large output for use both as gems and in mechanical applications. The greater part of the gem sapphires came from the mines in Ferguson county, where they occur in rock matrix. The majority of these stones have the true sapphire-blue color. The bulk of the sapphire for mechanical use came from the placer deposits in Granite and Deer Lodge counties, and consists of vari-colored stones.

Development of the opal deposits of Humboldt county, Nev., was attended with much success, and a quantity of magnificent gem material was obtained. The opal is of an unusual type, consisting of dark translucent mineral with a variety of rich colors. The deposits promise to supply a gem equal if not superior in beauty to the opal from Australia.

Prospecting and mining at the emerald mine in North Carolina were attended with only partial success. Two pockets or deposits of emerald were removed during the year; other developments consisted mainly of exploratory work, which has continued into 1913.

The tourmaline output of Southern California was small, but some magnificent specimen crystals were obtained. Especially fine gem crystals of kunzite were found and brought good prices. The production of turquoise was very small compared with some previous years. Beautiful amethyst was found in Warren county, N. C., and some fine gems have been cut from sample crystals. A few fine specimens of golden beryl were obtained from prospects in Alexander county, N. C. Beautiful gems were cut from some of these. The production of agate and associated varieties of chalcedony was again large in several western states.

No great advances are reported in diamond mining in Arkansas during 1912.
